Takeoutyourhouseholdincomestatement. The payoff for me is when the mortgage is paid off, I now have another stream of income that does not take much effort on my part, because, the property is well maintained in an area that continues to be in demand. Your article is about decreasing risk. So If I were a fund I would absolutely use leverage for short term returns. Yousee...Mortgage rates are cheaper the shorter the term so if you want to pay the loan off in 15 years and feel comfortable with the cash flow the borrower should take the 15 year, the argument against that would be if you are not comfortable with cash flow and do not have adequate reserves to weather the storm in a tough period you would be better paying the higher rate of interest on a 30 to have the flexibility of the lower payment.
