Art becomes a simple succession of styles and names with no connection to what is going on in the world. Thus, a jeweller who designs and makes non-functional items like rings or necklaces would be considered an artist, while a watchmaker would be a craftsman; someone who makes glass might be a craftsman, but a person who makes stained glass is an artist. Thank you for vindicating a feeling I have been having for a long time. Thanks for sharing your thoughts and experiences on these topics, I have found them very inspiring and insightful. In fact it has inspired me to comment in this article – which is the first time I have ever commented on a post online! And how to put it all. Thank you for writing such inspiring work. Not sure how to get started with visual merchandising? Just finished the Manifesto.
